> Twenty families were driven to the street in night clothes and six firemen of Engine No. 19 were overcome by smoke and gas during a cellar woodbin fire early to-day in the six-story house at No. 424 West 29th Street.

> A barking dog attracted Policemen Carver and Grebuer of the West 30th Street Station, and they assisted tenants to the street. The blaze did only $500 damage but melted gas connections, which made it hard to fight. The six firemen overcome were re-vived in the street with milk obtained from a Borden station a block

A fire which burned up the entire week's wash of the tenement at No. 200 Seventh Avenue this morning caused a panic among the tenants of its a'x stories, who crowded the fireescapes and seemed, at one time, as if ready to leap into the street.

It was in an apartment on the first floor that the fire started.
